

Maurizio Nencioni

Maurizio Nencioni, an Italian citizen, born in Florence on 13 January 1961, has gained over ten years of experience in the surface mining sector (open pit mines with primary and secondary gold tracing from rock and alluvial deposits) through the provision of geological prospecting services, mechanical design and technical consultancy on behalf of foreign companies operating in the territories of West Africa.

The technical consultancy included the preparation of mining companies, the study of the laws and territorial legislation in the mining field, the creation of fiduciary relationships with the management of the various State Mining Departments, the identification and finally the agreements with the landowners in possession of mining licenses for their concessions.

The work carried out by Maurizio Nencioni from 2003 onwards (mainly in Senegal) has helped to generate a wealth of very important technical experience on primary gold deposits, on the management of local relationships, favoring today the concrete possibility of carrying out mining projects in West Africa.

The strong knowledge of African tribal systems is fundamental to achieve the business goal, and the technical task that has been entrusted to him, having gained significant experience in years of work in the rural areas of former French and English colonies on the African continent, is carried out with passion, professionalism and competence.

The entrepreneurial experiences in Italy and abroad then led him to establish professional relationships with companies producing plants, mining, and processing and marketing of mining products.

The design and construction of opencast mines on behalf of important mining groups in West Africa have helped to increase his professionalism also in the management of assets (earthmoving machinery).

Thanks to the IT skills, the study of the territory, the specific task of Mr. Maurizio Nencioni, in the companies and in the group, concerns the organization and management of the various collection points where "personal" relationships are fundamental.
